HAZEL WOODROW

WORKSHOP FACILITATOR

Confronting Hate in Canadian Schools

Designed to help educators, parents, caregivers, and other supportive adults respond to the crisis of hate in schools and among youth, this workshop will include subject matter educational content, alongside tangible, developmentally attuned, trauma-informed, strategies for community support and intervention. The goal of the workshop is that participants develop confidence in inoculating against, identifying signs of, and intervening in cases of hate movement grooming and recruitment of youth.

ABOUT HAZEL

Hazel Woodrow holds bachelors degrees in sociology and social work, and brings a trauma informed approach to hate prevention, intervention, and reparation. Prior to her current role with the Canadian Anti-Hate Network, she was a researcher and analyst with the organization. As a convert to Islam, Hazel's work is strongly informed by the Holy Quran's command to bear witness, and to seek equity and justice.
